Case Study of decentralization and participative functioning

ANTARANG-CULTURAL FEST

Date of Fest: 22nd February 2020, Time: 10 am

Introduction:

As mentioned in the vision, mission and objectives of the college organizes the different extra-curricular activities throughout the whole year. Annual Day function is one of the grand events conducted by the college to identify the hidden talents within the students as well as to encourage and motivate the students to pursue their hobbies and interests. This Function includes a variety of events and programs organized. This event is in need of maximum participation of different stakeholders for its successful organization. Therefore the institution organizes the Annual Day Function through the process of decentralization and participative management.

- The Principal called a separate meeting for deciding the dates and the guests for the Annual Day Function.
- All decisions were taken in the meeting in which all the committee as well as student members actively participated in decision making.
- After finalizing the dates and guests for the function, the cultural committee chalked out the different committees in consultation with the Principal of the institution and IQAC coordinator.
- Each committee was formed with contributory teachers and student members. The nature of the committee for the purpose of decentralization of the work and participative management was as under various committees.
